Sewer Type: On-Site Public Gravity Public Pressurized

Aerial View of building, PSL, Street, etc. (Not to scale) Note dimensions of PSL to permanent structures such as building, curb, etc.

NOTE: This PSL report has three components: (1) Building Serviceability, (2) Inflow, and (3) Infiltration. The I&I targets are well defined – no I&I observed. Building Serviceability is less defined. When a typical aging defect will create an issue depends on many other aspects of the building's drainage system. Building serviceability only assesses whether the PSL is in at least "fair" condition. That assessment is limited to verifying that pipe is not more than 25% blocked, has no more than 30% encrustation, has no root masses or tap roots (fine roots are acceptable), and no part retains water across 20% of its diameter during no-flow periods. Outside this report the inspecting plumber is encouraged to still share his experienced opinion on the likelihood of future issues.

6. PRIVATE LATERAL INSPECTION METHODS

1. Prior to inspection, Private Laterals shall be cleaned by flushing or pressure jetting. A combination of the following methods shall be used to inspect Private Laterals to evaluate building sewers and ensure compliance with the above standards:

A Smoke Testing: Smoke testing of Private Laterals is performed by blowing smoke, mixed with large volumes of air, into the sanitary sewer line and lateral, typically from an entry manhole. The smoke is nontoxic, odorless, and non-staining. Because the area of interest is temporarily sealed off, the smoke follows the path of least resistance and quickly appears at sites that allow surface water to enter the sanitary sewer system. The only places where smoke should be seen escaping are the sewer vents on the roofs of the houses (if there is no house trap). Any other plumes of smoke indicate a source of inflow.

AND

Visual Inspection: This technique consists of video inspection using a lighted camera designed for inspection of sanitary sewers. The Visual (Video)

B Inspection shall be performed by a certified NASSCO Pipeline Assessment Certification Program (PACP)/Lateral Assessment and Certification Program (LACP) Operator using established PACP/LACP coding and observations. Lateral inspection methods shall conform to NASSCO standards, and defects shall be coded in accordance with the Manual of Sewer Condition Classification (most recent edition) as published by NASSCO, Inc.
